Anyone who has information that they want to ensure is delivered to someone else, even if they themselves have passed away, can benefit from LegacyArmour Services. LegacyArmour is unique in how they bundle technology and security, and has patents pending on both the delivery of information after a triggering event and on LegacyArmour's unique, and elegant method of encrypting information to military standards but without requiring people to remember a passphrase. In fact, LegacyArmour was recently recognized by Securian Financial, (one of the largest and influential financial and insurance companies in the country) for "for innovation shaping the future of financial services and life insurance through technology."

Levinson and Associates is a nationwide Insurance Marketing Company that services over 16,000 new and existing agents and represents a portfolio of over 75 life carriers and 25 annuity companies. Like LegacyArmour, they are a "Technology Forward" company that has created unique products such as their "I-Genius" Turn-Key Sales Platform and their "Sell While you Sleep" system.

"LegacyArmour perfectly complements our commitment to provide our agents with the latest and greatest tools they need to delight their clients and provide truly world-class service. This partnership will help make the agent a true trusted-partner with their client and strengthen the agent/client relationship in a way that no other company can!"
